33	Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, 10-11202. Document:	11/09/2012 00512049121, COURT ORDER THAT On November 2, 2012, counsel for the Receiver informed us that a confirmation hearing was scheduled for November 13 on a plan to wind down the Receivership. On November 6, the day before oral argument, counsel for Appellants notified us that an auction of certain Receivership assets was to be held on November 9, 2012.
	Concerned after oral argument that these developments might moot some if not all the issues presented, we ordered the parties to submit written responses on four factual and legal issues.
	In their responses, both the Receiver and the Trustee assure the Court that the auction to be held on November 9 will not result in an immediate transfer of title to any property currently under the control of the Receiver. The Receiver states that no closing will occur with a successful bidder until sometime between November 14 and November 30. The Trustee states that he and the Receiver "will not close the asset sale if Mr. Baron acts expeditiously to bring the matter before this Court." In light of these representations, we conclude that the auction itself will not affect the issues before the Court, but the closing of a sale would present significant mootness concerns. In order to maintain our ability to resolve the relevant issues, it is essential that any closing with a bidder from the auction be delayed until the end of the time period identified by the Receiver and Trustee. Disbursement of any other assets of the Receivership should be as limited as possible until this Court resolves the appeals. We enter no order at this point to effectuate that determination, but we inform the parties of the Court's intent and willingness to entertain motions to stay significant disbursements. The Court intends to resolve these appeals on an expedited basis. IT IS ORDERED that sales of the assets scheduled to be auctioned on November 9, 2012, not be closed prior to November 30, 2012, without order of this Court.

37	Dist. Doc. 1112. ORDER: The Fifth Circuit has delivered its	12/20/2012 opinion regarding the Receivership, nullifying the appointment of the Receiver. While the case has been reversed and remanded back to this Court, the mandate has not yet issued. Once the mandate has Receivership. In the meantime, the Court takes the following

38	Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, 10-11202. COURT ORDER	12/31/2012 FILED that the opposed motion of Appellee Peter S. Vogel for clarification of the Court's November 9, 2012, order is GRANTED.
	As stated in Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 41, the mandate that signifies the finality of the court's decision is not in the usual course issued with the opinion. Instead, it issues later under the varying circumstances set out in the Rule. The December 18, 2012 decision of the Court is at this time still subject to alteration by the panel or by the en banc court, and consequently it is not final. The district court orders that were in place prior to the rlease of our opinion remain in place. Upon the issuance of the mandate by this Court, the conclusions of our opinion become final and the district court and parties may rely on the rulings it contains. We point out that our opinion did not dissolve the receivership immediately. We ordered a remand for an expeditious winding up of the receivership.
	No assets that were brought under the control of the receiver will be released immediately from that control even when the mandate is issued. The district court will thereafter have the authority to manage the process for ending the receivership as quickly as possible. If no rehearing is requested by any party, and absent any hold on the mandate requested by a member of the en banc court, the madate will issue immediately after the expiration of the period to file for rehearing on January 2, 2013. A further order of this Court will be entered signifying whether the mandate in fact issues on that date. The Receiver has requested that we explain whether it is proper for further fees and expenses to be paid. As we said in the opinion and as the Receiver acknowledges, all fees and expenses need to be re-evaluated in light of our holding that the Receivership should not have been created. That conclusion neither authorizes nor prevents further necessary disbursements. The import of our order of November 9, 2012, has not changed, which said this: "Disbursement of any other assets of the Receivership should be as limited as possible until this Court resolves the appeals." We have resolved the appeals, but the only expenditures should be those appropriate for the Receiver to make until relinquishment of control of assets. It is for the district court to make the initial determination of whether approval of additional fees and expenses is appropriate at this time in light of the re-evaluation of all fees and expenses of the Receivership. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the opposed motion of Appellee Peter S. Vogel to clarify the status of the mandate is DENIED to the extent any clarification beyond what we have just given was requested. Baron filed a motion to claify who is to take custody of the receivership assets upon the dissolution of the receivership. The opinion stated that everything subject to the receivership other than cash "should be expeditiously returned to Baron under a schedule to be determined by the district court for winding up the receivership." Our utilization of a shorthand reference to Barron did not in any way affect the ownership of assets that were brought into the receivership. Assets are to be returned as appropriate to Baron or other entities that were subject to the receivership. Baron requests we clarify that he is not the principal beneficiary of Novo Point, LLC and Ouantec, LLC. Such clarification is irrelevant to our holding and is DENIED. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the alternative motion filed by Appellants Jeffrey Baron; Novo Point, LLC; quantec, LLC; and Gary Schepps to clarify that this Court's opinion of December 18, 2012, was issued "as and for the mandate" is DENIED. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the alternative motions filed by Appellants Jeffrey Baron; Novo Point, LLC; Quantec, LLC; and Gary Schepps for a stay of the injunctions containted in the district court's order appointing the receiver dated November 24, 2010, is DENIED.
